Words that inspire: FEATURED QUOTES AT MININGWEEK & MINEPRO 2025

“ We are committed to strengthening business freedom with transparent and accountable oversight. We have eliminated excessive regulations, accelerated digitalization, and reduced bureaucratic barriers. These reforms are already improving efficiency in trade and logistics. Upcoming legislation will further protect property rights and remove unnecessary restrictions. This will create a more predictable, investor-ready environment. Our goal is clear: enabling businesses to operate with confidence and efficiency.

Uchral N.

Prime Minister of Mongolia

“ The government is working to attract investment in Mongolia’s mineral sector by improving the business climate, simplifying visa and residence procedures, and ensuring legal protection for investors. The new “Foreign Investment Law of Mongolia” will guarantee stability, protect agreements, and allow investors to benefit and exit freely, fostering a more favorable investment environment.

Dorjkhand T.

Deputy Prime Minister of Mongolia

“ Mongolia, rich in natural resources, strives to compete globally by creating a stable, attractive investment environment. We aim to diversify its mineral sector beyond coal to include copper, uranium, and rare earth elements. To achieve this, amendments to the Minerals Law will be made, promoting sustainable growth and increased exploration to attract more investment.

Damdinnyam G.

Minister of Industry and Mineral Resources of Mongolia

“ Mongolia’s strategic position between Russia and China presents an opportunity amidst the current geopolitical tensions. If Mongolia develops its direct railway connections, it can become a reliable partner for China in supplying mineral resources. As geopolitical conflicts in the Asia-Pacific region intensify, Mongolia has the potential to provide stable and dependable supply chains. To realize this, it is essential to successfully continue infrastructure projects and focus on establishing key transportation linkages.

Battengel G.

Chairman of the Board, Mongolian National Mining Association
